

Networking

Networking becomes more and more important. No event without a networking break, and no day without checking our social media networks. Networking was, is, and will be important and beneficial. The challenge is to reach the goals in an efficient way.

Either if you are looking for business partners in the field of machine vision and optical technologies, for staff or someone to share and discuss ideas and opportunities, we will help to find the right contacts, platforms or events.

Today social business networks like Xing and LinkedIn, as well as the machine vision focused inspect-online community are a good and helpful platform, you can meet, follow and discuss with us there. We recommend these platforms and see them as very supportive, however nothing can beat real personal contacts.
